Fletcher-Andrae

Thursday morning, January 6th, 1916, the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Fletcher was the scene of the marriage of their daughter Pearl D. to Lloyd V. Andrae.

With the strains of the beautiful Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Clifford Hutton, pianist, and Ronald Toft, violinist, heralding the wedding hour of seven o'clock, the groom appeared at the side of the officiating minister, Rev. E. H. Bradfield, pastor of the Presbyterian church, followed by the bride upon the arm of her father. Gowned in white tulle over pale pink satin with silver trimming and carrying a bouquet of white bridal roses, she looked very lovely.

Taking their places under a canopy of intertwined pink and white ribbon, with a background of dark evergreen, the bride and groom were made one by the words of the marriage service, using the ring.

Only the immediate family of each were guests, and after the congratulatory words were spoken by all, an elegant five-course wedding breakfast with covers for twelve was served in the dining room, following which Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Andrae were conveyed to the train going east which took them for a honeymoon to parts unknown to their friends.

Their housekeeping will be begun in the handsome new home in Avoca which was recently built for them. Mr. Andrae has a position in the National Bank of Avoca and is well liked by everybody.

Mrs. Andrae is one of Yale's most popular young ladies, having lived here all her life with the exception of her year spent at school and another in teaching in New Mexico.

Nothing but sincere congratulations for success, happiness and health is heard on every side for this young couple.

The handsome gifts which were received will serve well in the furnishings of the new home.

Announcement Dinner

On New Year's eve a company of ten young ladies were entertained at a seven o'clock dinner, by Jennie Fletcher in honor of her sister Pearl.

The decorations were in red and white and at each cover were place cards with the names of the guests. Just before the close of the dinner one of the guests inadvertently turned her card over, and with a surprised and delighted exclamation proclaimed the announcement of the date of the marriage of Miss Pearl to Lloyd Andrae. The cards which told the story bore a dainty little red cupid stretching out its arms to two tiny pictures of the bride and groom to be and the date, January 6th, underneath.

Congratulations and best wishes followed the announcement amid much confusion and laughter.

On New Year's night four young couples were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Andrae, parents of the groom, and were served by Mrs. Andrae with a delicious chicken supper. A very pleasant time was enjoyed.

New Year's Re-union

The annual Holden family re-union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Holden on New Year's day.

It was impossible for all of the forty expected to be present this year and the actual number to sit down to the nicely appointed and heavily laden tables was thirty.

The day was greatly enjoyed by all, although a note of sadness was apparent that two who had been with them so many years were now absent forever, the mother who raised these eight stalwart sons, and one of these sons, William, whose death occurred only recently.

Those who spent the day together were the following:—Grant, King, John and Thomas, with their families, all of Yale; Neil Holden and wife, of Standish; Jesse Holden of Bad Axe; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hall and children of Eyart.

Those who were present certainly enjoyed Rev. Donnenwerth's sermon last Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. Freeman this week.

Prayer meeting at the usual time Thursday evening. There is no better place for a Christian to spend the evening than at a prayer service.

The L. B. C. will have their social evening with Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Graybiel on the evening of January 11. The ladies' husbands, the Men's Class, and teachers of the Sunday school are invited to be present. A good time is expected.

The young people of the W. W. class very pleasantly surprised Gea Beadle at his home last Friday night. Lunch was served and all enjoyed themselves. We will miss him in the class, but wish him splendid progress in his studies.

Dear Sir:—Just a line to let you know that Mrs. R. says "it is nearly time to send a dollar for the Expositor another year. But you know William I don't see how I can live without it."

All right, honey, here goes another dollar. You will find enclosed P. O. money order for that amount.

Wishing you success and a happy and prosperous New Year. I am,

Dear Brother Jim:

I was looking for the Expositor but it has not reached here yet. Please send it to me here.

I presume it is quite cold in Yale now. It is nice here in the day time. There was a frost last night. The day before yesterday it rained steady all day. Today it is just fine. Taking one day with another the weather is as pleasant as could be expected.

We are in the orange belt. Two packing houses here pack oranges and grape fruit. This place has a population of about 8,000 people. Five lakes within a mile of the city. Lots of good fishing. We got some fish this morning, fair size. Set the lines tonight and hope to get a good catch of trout tomorrow.

The orange crop is very light this year. From your brother,
